

It is interesting that the NAB must result to this to protect their stations. Maybe if the stations provided everything the public asked for, there would not be a need to have services like XM Satellite Radio. Just because there is now competition does not give the NAB the right to limit its competition.